IMPROVEMENT IN BUILDING OPERATIONS

There has been more activity in the building trade than in several months, notably the gain of October over September. While there is a loss for the month of October over the corresponding month of last year, it is not as great as the one in September over last year. In 20 cities in the Eastern States there was a total cost of new buildings from plans filed in October of $15,780,695, compared with $17,676,641 for the month of October, 1913, or a loss of 10%, whereas the loss in the same cities for September was 39%. The estimated cost of new buildings for the first ten months of 1914 was $234,240,624, compared with $244,916,477 of last year, or a loss of 5%.

In 22 cities in the Middle West, the loss was 24% for October, or $16,820,300, compared with $22,293,612 for October of last year. This is about the same percentage of loss as in September. There is a gain of 2% for the first ten months of this year over last, expressed in dollars it is $215,503,529 for 1914 and $210,754,757 for 1913.

In nine Southern cities there is a loss of only 25% for October. This is a gain of 16% over last month, for the loss for September was 41%. The total for October is $1,776,372, compared with $2,342,976 for last year.

Only five cities in the Pacific Coast States have been heard from, but the loss is small, both in the figures for October and for the first ten months of the year; however, there is a gain over last month. On the whole, the building figures for October from the entire country show an improvement.
